Lean/Agile Leadership Workshops

> "People change what they do, not so much because we give them analysis that shifts their thinking, but because we show them a truth that influences their feelings."
> John. P. Kotter, Heart of Change

Experience truths about your organization…

If your company were a car, what should it be? A racecar with a powerful motor, nimble steering, super suspension, road hugging tires and a great support team? Does it zoom away from the competition? It's not that racecar? Why not? What's wrong?

Lean Principles and Agile Values: the Foundation of Sustainable High Performance

…and how Lean and Agile can help you perform!

Why aren't you moving faster? Why does your company maintain its course like a supertanker headed for the shore? And why is everybody pushing in different directions?

Can the principles and values of Lean and Agile help you identify the causes of these problems and dramatically improve productivity? Absolutely!

Three workshops to start you on the road to high performance

This series of workshops is intended for Senior Management, Middle Management and other Corporate Leaders who want to get their companies 'in gear,' moving in the right direction and able to change direction intelligently. You want everyone pulling together.

You will experience these Lean principles and Agile values first-hand, so you understand their importance and can apply them to solving the problems of your organization. You finish each workshop with ideas for improvement to implement in your business immediately.

Lean/Agile Leadership Workshops
Detailed Description

Who are you?

Company Leaders, Senior or Middle Management, and Thought Leaders at Providers, Consumers and Users of IT Services.

What problem do you face?

You and your company have been successful, but your market is challenging and changing. You have talented staff, but critical resources are in short supply. Your people are flexible and hard working, but your development processes are slow and expensive. Your business would like more business value sooner, but development can't deliver.

Where do you want to be?

You want an organization able to respond swiftly to new challenges, build quality products and services, and create value for all stakeholders. You want to deliver results quickly.

How do you get there?

In this series of three executive workshops, you will experience how the principles and values of Lean and Agile Leadership can help you create a more effective organization which can deliver results and respond to new challenges effectively:

- Increase value produced by producing less, prioritizing more, and encouraging collaboration between business and IT

- Improve time to market and reduce inventory costs by reducing work in progress

- Eliminate waste and unchain your staff's potential by empowering your teams and systematically removing impediments

Each workshop consists of an introduction to the Lean & Agile principles and values, a discussion of the pressing issues of your organization, an interactive simulation to experience the principles, and a debriefing on opportunities and side-effects of applying these principles in your organization. You leave with new ideas to apply to your business immediately.

Booking and Information

The Lean/Agile Leadership Series consists of 3 on-site workshops of about 2 to 3 hours each. They are spread over several weeks so you can fit them into your Schedule. Each Workshop is limited to 15 participants.
